Second language education is a topic offered in the Societies, Cultures and Languages concentration. This concentration allows you to reflect on how societies, cultures and languages define education, and how they are themselves shaped by education.

Enchance your knowledge of second language education through a variety of courses, including:
- Social, political and cultural Issues in second language education (EDU 5146)
- Trends in second language teaching (EDU 5242)
- Bilingual, multilingual and minority contexts of language education (EDU 5244)
- Selected topics in societies, cultures and languages – Technologies, Languages, and Education (EDU 7133)

Degrees offered:
- Master in Education (MEd)
- Master of Arts in Education (MA)
- Doctorate (PhD)

Potential career opportunities
Teaching, administration and development of educational tools, in national and international settings, in various fields, including:
- Elementary and secondary education
- Postsecondary education
- Private institutes
- Community organizations
- Government
- Business
- NGOs

Programs designed for you
Our programs are easily accessible, in different teaching formats: classroom, distance learning (audio conference or online) or hybrid courses.

For more information about specific requirements, check the admission webpage (concentration: Societies, Cultures and Languages)
http://education.uOttawa.ca/en/requirements-grad-studies